The Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America.

CONDUCTED BY J. C. STRIBLING.

Communications intended for this department should be addressed to J. C. Stribling, Piedmont, S. C.

What Are You Doing For Farmers?

No doubt many farmers are doing what they consider the best thing for their own selfish ends and expect others to do the same. But this is not so. A world-wide market for cotton cannot be priced by the producer without a concert of action in a co-operative way among the producers.

What It Cost to Organize.

The United Miners' Union paid out last year over seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars in support of the principle and maintaining the system of enforcing a demand to have a say in setting prices on their labor. Farmers, how much have you contributed toward organizing the Farmers' Union? The originator of the plan of co-operation among cotton producers? This plan has swept over the South and forced cotton speculators to pay from $10 to $15 more per bale for your cotton. And if you have not joined the Farmers' Union or contributed to this grand movement in other ways you should take yourself out behind the barn and give yourself a real good bouncing on a rough stone or wire fence.

Shallow Ploughing.

Going, going, gone to the lower side is the way of all shallow ploughed lands! Some wrong thinking people seem to think they can defend their poor ploughing by terracing, but men of experience will tell you that there is absolutely no system of terracing that will keep shallow ploughed lands from washing during these big frost-strangling floods of rain.

Now is a good time for the farmer that has his richest lands down in the briar patches at the lower side of his fields to go after it; clear out the rubbish and plant these places in corn, potatoes, cowpeas and pumpkins.

You had just as well make up your mind that you can't fool nature! You may sometimes deceive men by half doing things but nature only gives up what she has in store for the farmer, and just as sure as the sun shines if you do not go at it right you will never unlock the riches of the soil unless you use the right key to each of nature's storehouses.

Prepare Your Land Well.

Water, water, Dry, Dry; will be the cry next July and August if you do not prepare your lands well now to store moisture for the dry times that are sure to come.

The farmer is well aware of the disastrous consequences if he undertakes to give his horse all the solid foods the horse needs and not give the "critter" any water! The horse would surely die for the want of water even if he did have all the food needed. So it is about furnishing plant food for your crops. You may apply 1,000 pounds of the best guano to the acre, but if the land has not been deeply ploughed and abundant moisture in the soil in proportion to the amount of concentrated fertilizers used the crop will starve for want of moisture, and unless it should rain every few days the more fertilizer you use the shallower ploughed land the less crop you will make.

Now is the time to prepare the land to store up moisture for use during drought. How can a sane man expect to get good returns from concentrated fertilizers placed on lands where there is no moisture to dissolve these fertilizers?

The Farmers Union.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union has paid out about five hundred and sixty thousand dollars in the way of organizing cotton farmers, within the last three years. This grand effort, which is in progress with the Farmers' Union, has increased the value of the cotton farmers' money crop, cotton, over fifty million dollars on the one crop of 1904.

Now neighbors, how much have you paid into the Farmers' Union or for other effort to help out the work that brought about this grand victory in the interest of the Southern farmers?

The South Carolina Farmer's Union now has several organizers in Laurens and other counties of the State, and plans are now on foot to send out at least ten more good men to canvass the State and rally farmers to organize under the banner of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union.

All good union men are requested to get together and select some of the most competent men and practical farmers and recommend them as State organizers to get the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union.

Good men that will gather the farmers together will get good pay for good work.

The Cotton Farmers and the Bucket Shops.

If you lay down to sleep with dogs, you may expect to get up in the morning with fleas on you.

It always takes two people to make a quarrel and we may also say that it takes two people to get up in the morning with a flea on the other's back.

We are told by people who are in a position to know that Southern cotton printers are short several million dollars in the last round with these bucket shops.

the suckers will have no water in the bucket to swim in when swimming time comes to them. If the bucket keepers win they know how to pocket the money, and if they lose much they also know how to break at the right time and get out of the way of the wrath to come.

GENERAL NEWS.

— Russia is holding up the money sent from friends in America to the Jews.

— Two negroes held up a pay train in Alabama and got away with $1,200.

— Three women in New York were badly torn in a battle with an infuriated cat.

— Nearly 500,000 persons are said to be starving in three northern provinces of Japan, where a panic prevails.

— A boy in Massachusetts, while eating, bit his tongue and bled to death. The hemorrhage could not be stopped.

— Joseph Watts shot and killed two brothers, D. S. and Orrin McDuffie, at a party in Rochelle, Ga., Saturday night.

— A steel splinter in a sausage stuck through the tongue of a man in New Jersey, and it took a medical operation to remove it.

— One man was killed and three were seriously wounded in a pistol fight between members of political factions in Savannah, Ga.

— There are rumors of war between this country and China. The government is said to be rushing war supplies as fast as possible to the Philippines.

— At Rockdale, Tex., W. J. Poole was shot and killed by W. J. Harris. They were night watchmen and the tragedy is said to have been due to jealousy.

— Mr. Richard A. McCurdy, late president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, who claims he is now a poor man, is going to make his future home in Paris.

— Sarah Jones, 70 years old, has been convicted of murder in Philadelphia—the killing of her foster daughter's child within a few hours after it was born.

— Booker Washington escorted a delegation of negro students to see the president, the young coons sang for Teddy, who made them a speech and said he was de-lighted.

— While fighting a fire in one of the worst storms of years, William T. Ohsweil, the popular chief of the Boston fire department dropped in his tracks and died from heart failure.

— A young white man named M. A. Black, of Atlanta, who was convicted for larceny, had his fine paid by his poor old mother. But before his release could be signed, the mother died without seeing her erring boy.

— Capt. Norman E. Webb, a well known capitalist of Birmingham, Ala., committed suicide while the other members of the family were at breakfast, sending a bullet through his forehead. Ill health is the ascribed cause.

— There is a man in New York city who began poor, never got a larger salary than $30 a month and in 15 years has managed to save $100,000. He is a waiter in the Astor house restaurant.

— The postoffice department has notified the promoters of the Jamestown exposition that souvenir stamps of appropriate design commemorative of the exposition will be issued. They will be of the denomination of one and two cents.

— Fire in the Leonard building, the largest office structure in Augusta, threatened the principal business block Friday afternoon. The building was badly wrecked. The loss is $50,000, insured to the extent of seventy-five per cent.

— The committee investigating the affairs of the New York Life Insurance Company recommended that the officers and trustees responsible for campaign contributions be sued to compel restitution.

— During 1904 Brazil produced nearly 16,000 bags of coffee, valued at about $140,000,000. The United States is Brazil's heaviest customer in coffee, the annual imports amounting to nearly $50,000,000.

— Out of forty-one actions for divorce entered on the docket of the Ocala County, Fla., court, but ten were granted. In one case, where a couple had been married for forty-eight years the judge refused rather sharply to grant a separation.

— In an address before the 50 delegates, attending the convention of negroes in Mason, Ga., to discuss racial problems, Bishop H. M. Turner, declared the American flag to be a dirty and contemptible rag. He further said that hell was an improvement on the United States when the negro was involved.

— It took a squad of policemen with drawn revolvers to keep a thousand men and boys from lynching a negro, Clarence Brooks, in New York city. Another negro had been killed and Brooks is said to have been in the shooting affray. The South is not the only section where the lynching spirit prevails.

— The inhabitants of the town of Littleton, W. Va., and which was practically wiped out by fire last week have lost heart and will abandon the place. One saloon was left and when the proprietor refused to obey the mayor's order and close, he sent men there with axes who knocked the place out of 100 barrels of beer.

STATE NEWS.

— A white child in Newberry while playing before a fire, was burned to death.

— Rev. Thomas C. Jacks, a prominent Baptist minister, died at his home in Laurens County on Thursday in the 27th year of his age.

— Allan Mack, who killed his wife in Charleston several days ago, has been exonerated from all blame, the killing being accidental.

— Hannah Kelley, colored, of Union is 106 years old and is still strong and hearty. She has only one child living, a daughter aged 68.

— Three illicit stills were destroyed in the Dark Corner of Spartanburg County last Thursday by State Constables Miller and Mullan assisted by two constables from Greenville.

— George Bates, a young man of Pickens, bought a horse and buggy in Greenville for $185 and gave a forged check for $200 for them, receiving $15 in change. He has been arrested.

— A new bank with a hundred thousand dollars capital has been organized in Greenville, with B. A. Morgan, author of the far-famed but now defunct "Morgan Bill," as president.

— J. R. Lyles and Roy Webster, members of the Preston Literary Society of Wofford College, have been elected to represent Wofford in the annual debate with Furman University, to be held early this spring.

— William Glider, a colored school teacher, was before the mayor in Newberry on the charge of selling liquor. The proof was positive, and he was found guilty. The mayor sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 or serve thirty days on the chain gang.

— A 12-year-old boy named McMahon, whose father works in the granite quarry at Paeolet, was killed as the result of a dynamite explosion. A piece of rock as large as a man's fist was thrown 500 yards, striking the boy on the head and crushing his skull.

— A few days ago Gov. Heyward granted a full pardon to John Harrison, sentenced ten years ago from Williamsburg to a life term for murder. This is the negro before whose cell a constable, in order to get a reward, appeared for a number of nights dressed in a sheet and frightened into a confession. The constable afterward confessed his methods.

— Prioleau, the negro who is contesting Congressman Legare's seat, may not be present at the hearing of the contest, when it comes up. He is under a jail sentence for tampering with the mails while a postal clerk between Sumter and Charleston, and the court of appeals says there was nothing wrong with the conviction.

— In celebrating the ordinance of the Lord's Supper a great many churches are discontinuing the use of wine containing alcohol, using instead unfermented wine which is the pure juice of the grape. The Methodist church of our town was the first in Edgefield to adopt the unfermented wine and it is probable that the other churches will do likewise at no very distant day.—Edgefield Advertiser.

— Receivers E. W. Hughes and B. A. Hagood, of the Columbia Savings and Trust Company of Charleston, which failed a few days ago, filed their bonds and qualified. The claims against the bank are now to be proved before Master G. H. Sear, there is much speculation on the amount which will be realized. It was stated that the depositors may expect about sixty per cent. but the statement was not official.

— The body of an old, gray haired man was found near the Southern Railway bridge near Fort Mill. There were no signs of violence and it is very probable that the old man froze to death. About $47 was found in the pockets of the overalls, which, with the exception of some very thin underclothing, was all he had on. An old letter in his pocket contained one sentence that could be read: "William Maxwell died Dec. 1862."

— A dog supposed to be mad bit the four-year-old son of James E. Dill, on Brawley street, in Spartanburg. The child was playing near his father's home, when the dog appeared and sprang upon the child, tearing away a portion of the flesh from his cheek. Prompt medical assistance was given the wounded boy. It is said that the dog bit and snapped a number of dogs in that section of Spartanburg. The dog was finally killed by a member of the police force.

— O. R. Evans, of Buffalo Cotton Mills, was struck by train No. 40 early Wednesday night while walking along the track from Spartanburg Junction to Spartanburg. He was thrown some distance from the track, where he remained in an unconscious condition for more than one hour. When he regained consciousness he walked to Maddux's drug store, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. H. E. McDowell. He sustained a cut on his face and received several bruises about his head.

— A notable instance of a dog's devotion to its owner occurred in this community a few days ago. Mrs. Julius Blackmon, who recently died in Lancaster, as noted in The News at the time, owned a little "flea," to which she was greatly attached. Having no children, Mrs. Blackmon was wont to pet the dog a great deal. And when she died the grief of the little "flea" was inconceivable. It howled most piteously for several days and nights, refused to eat anything and finally died.—Lancaster News.

Mr. Fant an Honest Man.

Chief Constable Fant seems an honest man and his honesty is brought out all the more clearly by the position he occupies in connection with the dispensary system, in which there appears to have been much rottenness and corruption. The experience Constable Fant had with the higher officers of the State, wherein they ignored his charges of crookedness, was enough to make a grafter out of any man of less honesty of purpose and purity of life. He could have put only one construction on their conduct, and that, they winked at the rottenness. Constable Fant might have gathered from this attitude of the highest authorities that his best course would be to get out of his position all there was in it.

But, after this seeming license to grafters, the constable, it appears continued to administer the affairs of his office in an honest way. Had he not done this he could not now, four years after his first charge of crookedness, stand so firmly on what he said at that time and declare "It is true and I will prove it."

No man comes forward now to charge the constable with dishonest practices, though he has administered the affairs of his office during these four years knowing the authorities of the State had refused to punish apparent dishonesty and thereby endorsed, in a measure, such conduct.—Spartanburg Herald.
